Clarocity Corporation Selected for 2017 HousingWire Tech100™ List

Calgary, Alberta – March 2, 2017 - Clarocity Corporation (TSXV: CLY) (the "Company" or "Clarocity") was just named to the 2017 HousingWire Tech100™ (HW TECH100™), an influential industry list that recognizes the housing economy's most innovative technology companies.

"We're honored to have been selected to the 2017 HW TECH100™ list for the second consecutive year," stated Shane Copeland CEO of Clarocity Corporation. "While last year our Valuation Vision division joined the ranks of technology titans, this recognition marks a huge milestone of the influence our innovative products such as MVPro and platform technologies are making as we continue disrupting traditional real estate valuations."

The essence of the annual HW TECH100™ competition, and part of what sets this competition apart from any other, is that it's the only effort to assess the technology landscape spanning all of the U.S. housing economy: residential mortgage lending, servicing, and investments; and real estate technology.

"At Clarocity, our design-driven approach to product and technology development provides a foundation for completely redefining what was thought possible," said Bill Mohler, Chief Product Officer. "Every day we challenge ourselves to push the envelope and develop innovative solutions to some of the toughest challenges in the valuation industry."
